Summary

U.S. coal production in the week ended February 20, 1993, as estimated by the Energy Information Administration from railroad car loadings, totaled 18 million short tons. This was 6 percent less than in the previous week, and 13 percent lower than in the comparable week in 1992.

The United Mine Workers of America selective strike, which began on February 2, 1993, continued at coal mines and preparation plants owned and operated by Peabody Coal Company in Illinois, Indiana, and western Kentucky and by Eastern Associated Coal Corporation in West Virginia.

Production east of the Mississippi River totaled 10 million short tons, and production west of the Mississippi River totaled 8 million short tons.
